

EDP Sciences (Édition Diffusion Presse Sciences), a subsidiary of learned societies, works closely with the scientific world. It is involved in the communication and dissemination of science to specialist audiences (researchers, engineers, students etc.) and non-specialist audiences alike (general public, decision makers, teachers...). EDP Sciences produces and publishes international journals, books and Internet sites with a predominantly scientific or technical content.

EDP Sciences publishes 40 scientific journals <http://publications.edpsciences.org/> and 400 books covering astrophysics, applied and fundamental physics, mathematics, electronics, materials sciences, life sciences, and medical fields.

EDP is the first French publisher to be a member of the DOI Foundation and of the CrossRef Foundation.

EDP Sciences is under the joint ownership of the Société Française de Physique (French Physical Society), the Société Française de Chimie (French Chemical Society) and the Société de Mathématiques Appliquées et Industrielles (Society of Applied and Industrial Mathematics).

All journals published by EDP are available as single subscription or within the customized journal collections as follows:
